

VISUAL AND PERFORMING ARTS APPLICATION

Program and Selection Process Overview

The Governor's School for Excellence is a week-long program sponsored by the Office of the Governor of Delaware that provides traditional and non-traditional college-level education, leadership training, and social activities for academically and artistically gifted rising eleventh graders. The program is held at the University of Delaware, Newark Campus on Sunday, July 16-Friday, July 21, 2023.

PLEASE NOTE:

The University of Delaware's COVID-19 policies for in-person learning will apply to Governor's School. As summer policies have not yet been issued by UD, we will provide updated guidance for Governor's School participants as soon as it is available. For additional information about UD's COVID-19 policies, see <https://www.udel.edu/home/coronavirus/>.

Nominees are generally selected by arts-related teachers, guidance counselors, or the principal based on their talent and previous experience. Nominations are only accepted when accompanied by the Principal Nomination Form. Do not send in an application form independently.

The selection process for the Governor's School is highly competitive. There is space for only one accepted student for every 4-6 students who are nominated by their school. Acceptance to any of the arts programs is based on performance criteria, and judges include University faculty members, instructors, and outside experts in the arts. Each school may nominate up to 8 students for Music, 2 students for Theatre, and 2 students for Visual Arts.
